Police close three roads Snow, wind blast area and The Times-News

High winds Thursday drove a severe winter storm across the bottom half of Idaho, causing power outages, forcing state police to close three highways and dumping more than a foot of snow on Sun Valley and other mountain towns.

Portions of Boise, Mountain Home and Nampa lost electric power Wednesday night and Thursday morning, as the storm — an offshoot of a major low-level system that slammed into the Pacific Coast — tore across central and southern sections of the state.

State law-enforcement and transportation officials ordered several road closures, after blowing and drifting snow reduced visibility, covered highway surfaces and made some routes impassable.

Blocked off to traffic because of snow, wind and "zero" visibility were U.S. 20 from Mountain Home to Fairfield; U.S. 93, from Carey to Arco; and Idaho 46 from Gooding to Fairfield.

Officials said other roads, such as Idaho 93 between Twin Falls and Nevada, were "borderline" and could be closed if conditions worsened.

Galena Summit was closed about 4 p.m. Thursday, after crews spent most of the day clearing slides and drifts.

An employee at Smiley Creek Lodge, between Galena and Stanley, said people who crossed Galena before it was closed said they were "busting through" drifts as high as the hoods of their four-wheel-drive vehicles, and some drifts along the road edges were 6- to 8-foot deep. In Stanley, residents said roads and streets had been plowed and traffic was moving around town, but it wasn't going anywhere outside of the community.

Sawtooth National Forest offices in Ketchum and Twin Falls continued to issue avalanche warnings, saying the danger was extreme and the high winds were making it worse. Numerous slides along roads and highways were reported in the Halley to Stanley area.

Friedman Memorial Airport at Halley reportedly was closed all day Thursday due to the snow and wind, and the Blaine County sheriff's office was advising against any travel in the area Thursday night.

However, in Twin Falls, airlines were continuing to fly, and agents for Republic Airlines said delays of 30 to 45 minutes on most flights resulted from heavy passenger loads rather than the weather.

Extremely high winds continued Thursday night. Airport officials reported 30- to 50-knot conditions throughout the day.

Most Magic Valley communities reported less than an inch of snow from the new storm, which saved many roads from being blocked by drifts. However, the Ketchum and Halley areas have received 30 inches

Gas tax OK'd; senators attack stall tactics

By NANCY J. SCHWERZLER
The Baltimore Sun

WASHINGTON — The 97th Congress adjourned with the Senate's enactment of a gas tax-highway repair bill amid demands for institutional reforms to prevent a recurrence of the delaying tactics that nearly doomed the gas tax legislation.

A week of long dark nights of the Senate's soul, reflected in increasingly vituperative marathon sessions, finally ended Thursday morning when the Senate voted 81-5 to cut off a conservative filibuster against the gas tax bill. Then the bill itself was approved on a 54-33 vote.

Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr. (R-Tenn.) had predicted passage of the bill, but he was taking no chances Thursday as several senators were flown on Air Force jets back to Washington from their home states or vacation spots to cast their votes.

One of those flown back to Washington, Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.), voted to end the filibuster but voted against the gas tax measure.

Idaho's senators split their vote on the bill, Steve Symms voting for the tax and James McClure voting against. Symms, chairman of the Senate Transportation Subcommittee, said that while the measure contained provisions he disliked, he voted for the measure because it will provide funding for extensive highway and bridge repairs in Idaho and other states.

But McClure said he opposed the bill on the grounds that "this isn't the time to add another tax burden on the American people."

The bill sent Thursday to President Reagan, who had strongly supported it, will raise the federal tax on gasoline and diesel fuel by 5 cents a gallon, from the current 4-cent levy to 9 cents, beginning next April 1.

The tax increase will finance a major overhaul of the nation's highways and bridges that the Reagan administration estimates will create 220,000 jobs. The unemployed will also benefit from the bill's extension of unemployment compensation payments by up to 6 weeks.

The Senate was far less concerned Thursday with the details of the gas tax bill than with the ordeal members had been through to pass the measure and the delay it caused in the start of their Christmas holidays.

Amid a clamor by senators Thursday for reform of procedural rules and limits on debate, Senator Baker and Minority Leader Robert W. Byrd (D-W.Va.), agreed to appoint a group of senators to study reforms of the chamber's rules, which are already under review by a panel headed by two former senators.

There were also renewed and intensified attacks, remarkable for their severity in the generally polite Senate, on Sen. Jesse Helms (R-N.C.), who emerged as the leader of the anti-gas tax filibuster in its final days.

During the protracted gas tax debate, which began Dec. 10, the Senate was "tyrannical and immobilized by a handful of men" and the chamber was turned into "the laughing stock of this nation," Sen. Dennis DeConcini (D-Ariz.) said Thursday.

While the Senate's rules permitting extended debate are designed to protect the rights of the minority, he said, "they do not give them license to dictate" to the majority.

Procedural stalling tactics had delayed until Thursday the vote on the gas tax bill, and at one point stalled a vital omnibus spending bill needed to keep the federal government in operation.

Helms and his North Carolina Republican colleague, Sen. John East, conducted the filibuster against the gas tax in its closing hours. Earlier, it had been led by Sen. Gordon Humphrey (R-N.H.) with the support of the Tent City holiday bleak, yet hopeful

HOUSTON (UPI) — There will be no Christmas ham or turkey on Floyd Gibbons's picnic table at Tent City USA where his family of six live in a tent and camper waiting for jobs, a home and a wish of better times to come true.

"It's going to be a bad Christmas. I've got $6 left in my pocket. The kids are not expecting too much this year," said Gibbons, who has lived at Tent City since September when a heart attack forced him off his job.

Gibbons, 50, an unemployed warehouse worker, is one of 114 people living at Tent City USA — a gathering of the homeless and jobless who have settled in tents and camp sites at a roadside park along the banks of the San Jacinto River 30 miles east of Houston.

The Gibbons family — Floyd, his wife, mother-in-law and four children ranging in ages from 11 to 21 — was forced to move to Tent City and live off donations from good Samaritans.

But since bad publicity focused on some freeloaders living in the area donations have since been run off. "We're normal everyday people trying to scratch up and get started," said Darlene Collins, 40, a resident for three weeks.

She said she was trying to arrange a little Christmas party for the children who live in the campgrounds, "but there is very little Christmas spirit here."

Gibbons said living in a house is only a memory to him now.

"I'd rather be in a house... someplace with hot and cold water. But we wouldn't be here if we didn't have to be," Gibbons said.

"How can you prepare for Christmas in a place like this?" asked resident Rick Shelby, 37, an unemployed truck driver who moved to Tent City with his wife and 18-month-old daughter more than two months ago.

"We've got no jobs and no money. We're used to a big feast and family for the holidays, but out here it's a can of beans or whatever people happen to donate," Shelby said.

Gibbons said his family and others intend to make Christmas a time of hope, rather than despair.

The Gibbons found a foot-tall plastic Christmas tree and decorated it with homemade ornaments and popcorn strings. They strung the tree with lights powered by batteries.

"We've gotten some donations and we'll have gifts for all the kids on Christmas Eve," said Mrs. Collins. "A doctor came out and wrote us a personal check for $500. We're going to set up a bank account and use that for gas and food," she said. "The lights cannot afford to get depressed. We're optimistic and everybody still goes out and looks for work. We're survivors. Everybody helps everybody else and you learn to work with what you've got."

No paper Christmas Day

So that employees may spend more time with their families, The Times-News will not publish a paper on Christmas Day.

The normal publication schedule will resume with Sunday's paper. The Times-News circulation, classified, advertising and business offices will be open until 2 p.m. today and will then close until 8 a.m. Monday. The newsroom will not be open. Readers should also note that a paper will not be published on Jan. 1.

So you don't miss some of your favorite Saturday comics, some of the strips that would have appeared in Saturday's edition are on page A10 of today's paper.

We wish everyone a Merry Christmas and a happy New Year.

Reagan lauds bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan, in a Christmas mood, congratulated Congress Thursday for passing a gasoline tax boost to repair bridges and highways before it adjourned its 1981-82 session.

"We have an excellent piece of news from Capitol Hill," Reagan told a hastily assembled news conference at the White House.

Before the stampede to the airport begins, I want to congratulate members of Congress who deal with some difficult issues."

He called the gas tax boost "a very important contribution to transportation" and avoided any mention of the several hundred thousand jobs the road, bridge and mass transit repair projects are supposed to supply.

Reagan called the action "a credit to the leaders of both parties" and declined to comment on the long filibuster by conservative Republican senators that held the bill hostage until two days before Christmas.

"I thank the leaders and wish them, and you, a very merry Christmas," the president said.

The news conference, in the White House briefing room, lasted about 15 minutes and was ended on a light note by Reagan, who said he was late for lunch with Vice President Bush — "and you know how irritated George can get."

He answered a wide range of questions, saying he considered his Mideast peace initiative perhaps his greatest accomplishment of the past year and said he was not frustrated by the inability to reduce unemployment, now at 10.8 percent, "because we have put in place a sound program that is going to lead to a sound recovery."

Reagan said he expected his economic program to provide "a lasting recovery," not "just a quick fix."

"I am convinced that this coming year is going to see a definite upturn" in the economy, Reagan said, but he added he could not promise any dramatic improvement in the unemployment rates. He said joblessness was always the slowest element to recover after an economic downturn.

New jobless claims still decreasing

Friday, December 24, 1982 Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho A-3

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Labor Department said Thursday 533,000 workers put in new claims for unemployment benefits during the week ended Dec. 11, a drop of 58,000 from the previous week and the third straight week of decline.

The department's Employment and Training Administration also reported that seasonally adjusted data showed a total 4,522,000 recipients of jobless checks under state programs for the week ended Dec. 4, a drop of 182,000 from a week earlier.

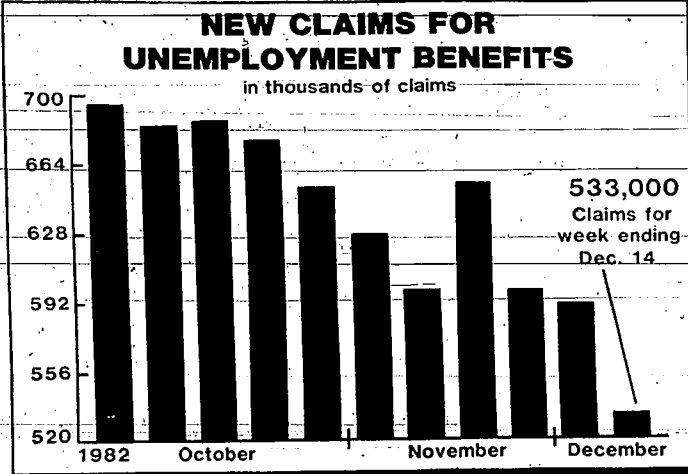

Not included in that total, however, are more than 1.2 million workers receiving jobless benefits under programs other than the normal state-run systems, including 767,000 workers receiving special federal supplemental compensation and 354,500 on extended benefits beyond the normal 26-week period.

In a special "trigger notice," the department also announced that effective Dec. 5 Kentucky became one of 13 states where workers are eligible for extended benefits because of continued high unemployment.

The report on new claims is often considered by economists to be an indication of future activity in the nation's unemployment rate. The rate for November was 10.8 percent. The December rate will be announced on Jan. 7.

The latest new claims figure is 121,000 below the number for the week that ended Nov. 20, when the current decline began.

The department said the seasonally adjusted rate of insured unemployment — the percentage of Americans covered by unemployment insurance that are unemployed — dropped from 5.4 percent to 5.2 percent for the week that ended Dec. 4.

West Virginia, at 8.9 percent, remained as the state with the highest insured jobless rate according to unadjusted data.

Pennsylvania, at 7.9 percent, was second, followed by Alaska, 7.7 percent; Michigan, 7.4 percent; Idaho, 7.2 percent; Oregon, 7.1 percent; Washington, 6.9 percent; Alabama and Arkansas, both 6.7 percent, and Mississippi and Ohio, both 6.3 percent.

Administration has final solution

WASHINGTON — A controversy over high consulting fees and expenses paid to directors of the Legal Services Corp. could have been avoided if the agency had been abolished as President Reagan wanted, a top White House aide said Thursday.

"We ought to be providing legal services to the poor not at taxpayers' expense," presidential counselor Edwin Meese told reporters. "This should be a professional responsibility."

Meese, assigned by Reagan to look into the money collected by board members during the first 11 months of 1982, disclosed the White House has received a "preliminary report" on the consulting fee payments from the Office of Management and Budget.

The budget office is looking into the payment of $150,000 in consulting fees and more than $90,000 in expenses of members of the board. Members of Congress also have asked the General Accounting Office to investigate.

Meese, a former prosecutor, reiterated his view that the legal profession, where "we have some tremendously creative and innovative programs going on," should shoulder the responsibility.

"Frankly," he told reporters, "this whole problem with the Legal Services Corporation is that none of this should have gone on. There should have been no Legal Services Corporation."

Congress has rebuffed Reagan on attempts to cut federal support for the agency.

The budget office report, while not conclusive in its findings, indicates congressional action that boosted the amount board members can receive played a role in causing the payments to swell, Meese said.

He said the directors also collected more money because they "held about three times as many more meetings as their predecessors to try to straighten out the mess" at the corporation.

Reagan recently withdrew a slate of new nominees to the board on grounds the Senate would not confirm two of them. Aides insisted the action was unrelated to the controversy over the consulting fees.

Meese said the White House has "a number of candidates" under consideration for interim appointments to the board once Congress reconvenes next year.

A thought for today

Jobless benefits extended

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress voted final approval Tuesday to extend unemployment benefits for up to six more weeks for an estimated 2 million workers who have exhausted normal benefits.

The measure, estimated to cost $540 million to $600 million, was included in the compromise highway-gas tax bill sent to President Reagan by the Senate.

Major jobs programs proposed by Democrats in the lame-duck Congress died in the rush to adjournment. Other than the highway repair program, which the administration estimates would create 300,000 jobs, the benefit extension is the major action the post-election session took to help the jobless at a time of 10.8 percent nationwide unemployment.

If signed by the president, the action will add up to six weeks onto a complex program began in September that had allowed up to 10 weeks of added benefits for workers in high unemployment areas who exhausted the 26-week regular and 13-week extended benefit programs.

The new maximum 16-week supplemental program will go into effect immediately after Reagan signs it. The entire program expires March 31 and, while the change is estimated to cost $2.2 billion to $2.3 billion.

To be eligible for the supplemental benefits, the benefit year for an individual — one year from the date of an initial claim — had to end on or after June 1, 1982, or the individual must have been entitled to extended benefits for a week that began on or after June 1.

Labor Department spokeswoman Abby Martin said those receiving the supplemental payments, funded entirely by the federal government, will get the same jobless pay as under the regular state programs. In October, the average weekly jobless check was $122.75.

Under the new amendment, workers in states where the insured unemployment rate is above 6 percent would be eligible for 6 weeks of supplemental benefits. The insured unemployment rate is the percentage of the workforce covered by unemployment insurance that are out of work.

Peace graces world this Christmas Eve

There have been years past when the world seemed in chaos and turmoil at Christmas, beset by wars, social conflict and political strife.

This year, thankfully, it seems more subdued. A short, costly war in the Falklands has left parents grieving in both England and Argentina. Continuing fighting mars the Middle East, particularly Lebanon and Iran.

A new leader takes over in the Soviet Union and signals a veiled interest in mutual arms reductions. Congress decisively turns down the MX missile-basing plan; nuclear-freeze advocates gain strength.

None of these signs, in and of themselves, are conclusive, human nature being what it is. But at the end of 1982, looking around, we see a world essentially at peace.

On the floor of the House this past week, Rep. James Wright of Texas proposed, not in jest, that the United States and the Soviet Union create a mutual fund into which each would put money earmarked for defense. Instead of it being used for arms, it would go to providing medical supplies and schools, throughout a world crying for such simple amenities.

His remarks will be met with scorn in some quarters; Sen. Steve Symms, for example, says the MX is essential for national defense and blames its defeat on "anti-defense liberal Democrats."

But wouldn't it be a fine Christmas present for our and the Soviet's leaders to pull back from what could be a nuclear Armageddon and take steps to reduce world tensions further? That would give tangible meaning to the Bible's simple phrasing, "Peace on earth, good will to men."

Closer to home, we at The Times-News will not publish a Christmas-morning paper this year, tomorrow, to give our employees the day off with their families and friends.

So we (the editorial "we") take this opportunity to wish all our readers a merry Christmas and a joyous holiday season. We'll be back on your doorstep Sunday morning.

Christmas glitches stir in the house

WASHINGTON — There are certain things that happen during the holidays that nobody wants to talk about until, oh, maybe next June. They are the Glitches of Christmas — those sometimes painful, funny or frustrating events that seem to mess up our fondest holiday fantasies every year.

Why is it that, no matter how hard we try, things are always going wrong when we want them to go right?

Surely you know what I mean. Take decorating the family Christmas tree. Most people I know like to think of this as a nostalgically happy time when Christmas carols fill the air and togetherness glows like a Christmas star in the living room.

Yet so often when the magic moment arrives, half the family is stringing popcorn while the other half is huddled in the corner watching television. Between the two lies a No Man's Land filled with enough natural electricity to light up the whole block.

Consider also the perils of Homecoming. This is the year when all will be harmonious at the family reunion, we tell ourselves. Our relatives won't drive us crazy, we'll give everybody the appropriate gift and even the dog will cooperate and not chew the wrappings off the packages under the tree.

Yet somehow, the old habits and routines don't change, not even when countered with a major injection of Christmas spirit. On the contrary, our relatives seem to get crankier, our gifts are duds and the dog gets sick on the living room rug.

Ah, well. Then there are the perils of Homemaking — in this case, the elaborate staging of the holiday with festive trimmings everywhere, warm fires burning, and lots of delicious smells coming from the kitchen.

The prime choreographer of this happy scene is usually one person. A woman. We can easily pick her out — she's the one stuffing leftovers down the disposal after putting on a meal for 10 people, musing resentfully on why it is she lets herself get roped into waiting on everybody every year.

Does all this happen only in the homes of people I know? Surely not. But even if that were so, there are plenty of Christmas Glitches to spread the frustration evenly.

Did you decide this year to spurn high prices and go out in the country to cut your own Christmas tree? Then of course you found out that the local tree farm doesn't believe in growing trees more than three feet tall.

Is it your habit to wrap gifts around midnight on Christmas Eve? Then you know there won't be an inch of cellophane tape left in the house.

And if you making eggnog for Christmas brunch, you know what happens. The eggs curdle.

So it goes. Within every corner of the holiday season, a glitch is lurking. Why? Perhaps because our hopes and expectations for the holiday are so laced with tradition and memories they always seem to outstrip reality. We yearn for a level of perfection that we like to think once existed — but never really did. Maybe that's why Christmas always seems to promise more than it delivers.

It's amazing, in light of all this, that Christmas remains the repository of warmth and pleasure. Things do, as we say, work out. The tree does eventually get decorated. Our relatives eventually soften. And the answer for finding nothing better than a three-foot tree is easy. Buy two.

Actually it's when we manage to accept glitches as part of the holiday, even the ones entangled in our most cherished ideas of what Christmas should be, that everything brightens up.

If you have a hard time believing that, sit back, sip another curdled eggnog and relax. In an Imperfect world where no gift hangs together without cellophane tape, you deserve a rest.

You'll feel a whole lot better about it all next June.

Women, too, need employment in these tough times

BOSTON — As the Congress quarreled its way to a conclusion, the fate of assorted job bills rose and fell like a barometer in a political storm system.

For a fortnight, the economists and politicians discussed every detail of their bills: make-work and real work, the private sector and public works, the cost of unemployment and the cost of government programs. But hardly a word was heard about one odd little secret. All these job bills were actually "men's job bills."

The basic fact skewing these plans is that 98.3 percent of construction workers in this country are male. So when the Congress talked about funding jobs to repair highways and bridges and mass transit, they were really talking about funding male jobs. When they wrangled over gas tax, they were raising money that would eventually pay the wages of skilled male labor.

There is nothing wrong with supporting jobs for men. Nor is there anything wrong with improving our highways.

Women's axes also go bump in the night. But we're in hard times, and in hard times we talk about putting the breadwinners back to work and think of breadwinners as men. In hard times it's just too easy for unemployed women to become invisible.

Harvard historian Susan Ware, who has written about the fate of American women in the 1930s, says: "I keep sitting here being struck again and again by the parallels with her book, 'Holding Their Own,' the female unemployed, laid off by one or rather than in massive factory shifts, were not seen in breadlines or flop houses.

During the Depression years, somewhere between two million and four million women were unemployed. Too many of them faded into the wallpaper. As Dr. Ware points out in her book, "Holding Their Own," the female unemployed, laid off by one or rather than in massive factory shifts, were not seen in breadlines or flop houses.

No one noticed them. Some became "housewives," 145,000 more or became homeless wanderers, and still others shut themselves in rooms until their money and food ran out.

When the Roosevelt administration set up the first jobs program, it was also for large-scale construction work and public projects. It was up to the women in the New Deal, especially Eleanor Roosevelt, to remind the men that women, too, needed work.

Even so, only 300,000 of the four million people at work for the Civilian Works Administration in January of 1934 were women. Of all the workers in the WPA, only 13 to 19 percent were women and over half of them worked in sewing rooms. For most of its existence, the Civilian Conservation Corps for unemployed youth was limited by law to men.

At the same time, the attitudes toward working married women turned sour, even hostile. In 1936, when George Gallup asked the American public whether wives of workmen should hold jobs, 82 percent said no. By 1939, 77 percent of the schools, 84 percent of the insurance companies and 65 percent of the banks all had restrictions on married women working.

You don't have to be clairvoyant, you don't even have to be an historian, to feel this happening again.

Today the television cameras shoot film outside the factories where a hundred men are being laid off, rather than outside the smaller businesses where women lose work one by one. The President suggests that it's not the recession causing a rise in unemployment, but the increase of so many women in the marketplace.

Stories begin to appear about husbands who have lost jobs while wives have not, as if the economy were engaged in some giant role reversal. Few remind us that the unemployment rate among men is still one point higher than among women. Still fewer remind us that now, as in the Thirties, women retain jobs only when (and because) they work in the low-paid female job ghettos where men don't apply.

Finally the Congress begins to think about jobs... for men.

I am not trying to suggest that men and women should become competitors for jobs. We're too interdependent for that. A jobs program for men also helps the bulk of women who live in families where men are the higher wage-earners.

Similarly, at a time when 52 percent of the women in this country work, when one out of six families is being maintained by women, when the bulk of young families depend on two workers to survive, it just won't do to forget about women.

It took decades, for the women who work to become visible. Now we have to "see" the women who are out of work.

Ellen Goodman writes for the Boston Globe.

Congressional paralysis is at least 'representative'

SEN. HOWARD BAKER
Reasoning with Lear on the heath

WASHINGTON — Howard Baker is normally as jolly as Father Christmas, but in recent days he must have wanted to say to one or another of his filibustering Republican colleagues, "How art thou fallen from heaven, O Lucifer, son of the morning!" The sons of the very early morning included Sens. Helms, East, Nickles and Humphrey, embarrassments to North Carolina (twice), Oklahoma and New Hampshire respectively.

Trying to reason with such persons in the waning hours of a lame-duck session is like trying to discuss golf with King Lear while he is raging on the heath. Unfortunately, Senate rules that allow filibusters reflect accommodations that are more subtle than some senators. Senate procedures measure intensity of feeling as well as numerical strength. The filibuster, an expression of intense opposition, is used frivolously when the intensity is disproportionate to the principle at issue.

Proper filibusters — proper in that they satisfied the proportionality standard — were waged over civil-rights legislation in the mid-1950s, and over presidential war-making authority in the early 1970s. Those filibusters ventilated intense feelings about basic rights, war and peace, and constitutional propriety. But last weekend, what epochal issue caused pent-up passion to spill from the Republican filibusters? Just a nickel tax on a gallon of gasoline. And what was the principle at issue? That taxes were yucky? Would Helms, East, Nickles and Humphrey have filibustered about four cents? Three? What would they have done about 10 cents — threatened to blow up the Washington monument?

The trivialization of the filibuster was not the main reason why Congress staggered to the end of the session looking like the schooner Hesperus that sailed the wintry sea.

Congress is buckling beneath the strain because there are still just 535 seats, and the business of legislation, oversight and constituent service grows geometrically as the country grows more clamorous.

To help itself, and especially to enable it to peg up with the executive branch, Congress has provided itself with an enormous staff. Since the dark days (1970-72) when I was a member of that staff, it has grown rapidly to 30,000. The result is a bureaucratization that causes government to congeal like cold mashed potatoes.

The staff has a professional interest in the kind of complexity that deepens the senators' dependence on staff. And the staff members — mostly young and full of animal energy — fill the hours by pestering the executive branch with inquiries, and finding ways to fine-tune executive policies.

The growth of congressional staff also reflects a primal urge in institutions. James Q. Wilson of Harvard, my moral tutor concerning all things governmental, argues that organizations come to resemble the organizations with which they are in constant conflict. Pat Moynihan has elaborated this insight into the Iron Law of Emulation.

He notes that Teddy Roosevelt in 1902 built the West Wing of the White House, where the Oval Office is. Until then, Presidents and their staffs of three or four worked in the President's living room. In 1903 the House voted itself its first office building. In 1904 the Senate did likewise.

"Originally," Moynihan says, "a senator's office was his desk on the Senate floor. These desks proved inadequate, and in the 1830s three-inch-high mahogany writing boxes were added to the desks. Daniel Webster refused to have his desk altered on the grounds that if his predecessor could have done without the additional space, so could he."

By 1978, Moynihan says, the Senate alone had a budget larger than the budget of 74 countries. Today the White House chief-of-staff has a staff which is, or so the newspapers say, at daggers drawn with the staff of presidential counselor Ed Meese.

The President acquired a Bureau of the Budget (now OMB) in 1921, giving him, as Moynihan says, a huge advantage in dealing with Congress. Congress established a budget office in the 1970s. Now there is strategic parity: Both sides have budget offices skilled at fiscal management and economic controversy. But as 1982 winds down, the government cannot enact a budget for a fiscal year now three months old.

The judicial branch is clogged because Americans believe that every social issue can be cast as a conflict of individual rights, and that every dispute can and should be adjudicated.

The legislative and executive branches also reflect the tangled moods of the populace: the insistent desire for omniprovident government, and the equally strong resentment about the cost of that.

The most dismaying fact about the U.S. government today is that it is indeed what it is designed to be: representative. It represents the country's conflicting desires.

Marines get cheer from the Lebanese

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — U.S. Marines spending Christmas in Beirut received some holiday cheer Thursday in the form of three bottles of wine each, along with cake and turkey for Lebanese well-wishers who donated $54,000 to buy them gifts.

"You are here to help us and we are grateful," said Camille Menassa, administrative director of the French-language newspaper l'Orient-Le Jour that organized the collection for the American, French and Italian peacekeepers.

"It's a way ... to tell you thank you and Merry Christmas."

The gifts bought for the 1,000 Marines were picked up by truck from l'Orient-Le Jour in downtown Beirut and taken to Marine headquarters near Beirut airport.

Phyllis Salem, wife of Lebanese Foreign Minister Elie Salem, and Ruth Craig, wife of the U.S. military attache, handed over some 30 gifts in a symbolic ceremony attended by the Marines' commander, Col. Tom Stokes of Raleigh, N.C., and a small group of NCO's.

The presents included the newspaper collection netted about $54,000. This stretched to a box of Lebanese artefacts and three bottles of wine — red, white and rose — for each Marine, a Christmas cake for every six, and a turkey for every six.

French and Italian troops received similar presents in separate ceremonies, also attended by their commanding officers.

The presents were piled in boxes on a table in front of the Marine-HQ, marked "Merry Christmas."

Accepting the gifts, Stokes said on behalf of all the Marines: "Your generosity is manifested daily. Thank you."

Poles free dissidents jailed by martial law

By RUTH E. GRUBER
United Press International

WARSAW, Poland — Polish authorities set free Thursday all the remaining dissidents held under martial law but promptly arrested seven of them — top leaders of the banned Solidarity union — on charges of plotting to overthrow the government, officials said.

"There is nothing we have to be happy about, as some of our colleagues were arrested," said one newly freed man.

But relief and joy was clear on the faces of the eight prisoners who stepped out of Bialoleka prison in the Polish capital into a cold damp night and the arms of waiting friends and relatives.

Also ordered released were several dozen interned former state and party officials, including ousted Communist Party boss Edward Giersek and Prime Ministers Piotr Jaruzelski and Edward Babuch.

More than 10,000 people were held in internment camps across Poland — including Solidarity leader Lech Walesa — since martial law was declared Dec. 13, 1981. Most of them have been released in groups in the past two months.

"As a friend pooled champagne in the background, freed former Solidarity spokesman Janusz Onyszkiewicz, who called the arrests "a blow," said, "It's not over, we will carry on."

"We will succeed. We shall overcome some day," he said, quoting the American civil rights anthem and, like at least one other released man, sporting a Solidarity badge.

The seven arrested men, all members of the union's 107-member national commission interned since martial law was imposed Dec. 13, 1981, face sentences of 5 years to death if found guilty.

An official statement gave no hint of why the seven were arrested, but a press spokesman in the military prosecutor's office said they were charged with attempting to overthrow the political system under article 123 of the penal code.

The spokesman refused further comment.

Four other key interned Solidarity figures, including dissident leader Jacek Kuron, were arrested on the same charge in September.

The seven, who thus will be held in detention when martial law is partially suspended Dec. 31, included Andrzej Gwiazda, 47, former deputy chairman of the now banned union and a key leader of the August 1980 Gdansk shipyard strike.

The released men said their seven colleagues had been arrested and taken from their cells Wednesday evening. The others did not find out that they themselves would be freed until Thursday morning, when the lengthy process — including a search of all possessions — began.

"Right now I want to go home, have a bath, relax and have a chat with my family," Onyszkiewicz said.

In Gdansk, Walesa said the seven arrested men "are Solidarity members and efforts will have to be made so they can be freed," but neither he nor those who were released could offer hope at the moment.

Japan slashes duties on agriculture imports

TOKYO (UPI) — Japan bowed to pressure from its Western trading partners and a personal appeal from President Reagan Thursday, slashing customs duties on industrial and agricultural imports ranging from raisins to tractors, government sources said.

The sweeping reforms, approved by a cabinet task force at a meeting at the residence of Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone, are expected to go into force before Nakasone visits Washington in mid-January, the sources said.

Cuts in import duties were approved for 40 categories of agricultural products and 28 types of industrial goods in an effort to squelch U.S. and European charges of unfair Japanese protectionism.

The tariff-cutting measures are expected to boost Japan's imports by $79 million a year.

Sources said the government decided to cut duties on tobacco, biscuits and chocolates — three sources of bitterness in the dispute pitting Japan against the United States and Western Europe.

Japan last year ran a $18 billion trade surplus with the United States and another $13 billion with the European Common Market countries.

This year, even higher Japanese trade surpluses are projected.

Government officials said Reagan's appeal, received "recently," made a strong argument for Japanese efforts to open markets to U.S. goods, particularly lifting tariffs on tobacco. Other details of the letter were not disclosed.

An Agriculture Ministry source said the government plans to cut import duties "by around 20 percent" for 40 categories of "farm products" in the 1983 fiscal year beginning April 1.

Imports of these farm products — including goods such as papaya, raisins and vegetable juices — amounted to $230 million last year.

Bombs wreck Jewish club

SYDNEY, Australia (UPI) — Three bombs exploded Thursday at the Israeli Consulate and at a Jewish social club, wounding two people and causing extensive damage in Australia's first known anti-Semitic attacks.

A car threatening more attacks on Jewish targets unless Israeli forces leave Lebanon told the Australian Broadcasting Commission the Organization for the Liberation of Lebanon from Foreigners planted the bombs that went off without warning.

Israeli Consul General Moshe Liba and four of his colleagues were unhurt by the bomb that exploded in the stairwell a few feet from their 7th floor office in Sydney's exclusive Westfield Tower.

But an elderly cleaning lady standing in the doorway of the consulate was felled by flying rubble and hospitalized in critical but stable condition with a fractured skull and broken ribs, police said. Her identity was withheld.

On the sixth floor, insurance office worker Paul Netherery was blown off his chair by the mid-afternoon blast and knocked to the ground.

"One second I was sitting calmly, the next I was sprawled on the floor, swamped by broken glass and pieces of flying debris," said Netherery, who was treated for shock and lacerations.

Invasion stifles Bethlehem Christmas

By OHAD GOZANI
United Press International

BETHLEHEM — Israel's invasion of Lebanon and the collapse of the national airline were blamed Thursday for a slump in Holy Land tourism and what merchants called the worst Christmas season in 15 years of Israeli occupation.

Workers put up the last strings of red, yellow, blue and white Christmas lights in Bethlehem's Manger Square Thursday and golden globes festooned with red and silver tinsel decorated the fir tree next to the Bethlehem police station.

Technicians set up loudspeakers in the square and soldiers bused into town toting Gall rifles, among them two dozen women in uniform.

"It's the worst Christmas since the Israeli occupation began," said Nasri-Hazboun, 44, proprietor of the small Andaluz Hotel overlooking the square. "It has been declining since the occupation." In 1967, he said, "Bethlehem keeps its attraction for Christmas worldwide, but some other factors are to blame."

His 10-room hotel was filled with foreign television crews, filming the scene in Bethlehem, birthplace of Jesus Christ.

Bethlehem Mayor Elias Freij bemoaned the low number of tourists this year and called it a "condemnation of the occupation and Israeli policies."

In Jerusalem, Tourism Ministry spokesman Michael Gidron said 12 percent fewer pilgrims and tourists came to the Holy Land this Christmas.

He blamed it on the war in Lebanon. "The distortion of Israel's image abroad as an outcome of the war" and the collapse of the national airline, El Al.

Nazareth, where Christ spent his boyhood, is second to Bethlehem for Holy Land Christmas tourists. This year, there will be no colored lights or painted shop windows.

Christmas different in hard times

BETHLEHEM, Pa. (UPI) — Christmas in Bethlehem is different this year; unemployment is a major problem and people are looking to their spiritual roots more than in past years.

Traditionally Christmas in Bethlehem means a time to reflect upon the legacy left by the Moravian Church settlers who christened the community on Christmas Eve in 1741.

At Christmas Eve worship services this Friday, however, thoughts of the past will be interrupted by prayers for the future of the city whose name is synonymous with the holiday.

"We find a bitter year in 1983," said the Rev. Raymond Hittinger, pastor of Rosemont Lutheran Church, where attendance has mirrored Bethlehem's jobless rate, now standing at more than 12 percent.

"People are really looking to their spiritual roots now more than they have in a long time," he said. "Some values are being re-examined."

Bethlehem Steel, the city's largest employer, has laid off 4,000 of the 10,500 workers at its plant on the Lehigh River, and 300 of the 3,800 employees at its corporate headquarters.

Dr. Mervin Weidner, senior pastor at the Central Moravian Church, said the continuing slump in the steel industry has created a "very serious concern" in the community that more pink slips will follow.

The concern, he said, has been reflected in the fervor with which the city has approached the Christmas season, and in the growing number of Bethlehem's citizens who are seeking solace in their faith.

"There is a very intense sense of devotion because of the unemployment," said Weidner, who will devote his prayers at three candlelight vigils on Christmas Eve to two things — the jobless and world peace.

"People who are turning to the church know that while their financial security may be at stake, their spiritual security is not. Christmas is a time for them to find out what gains they can make even out of their losses."

Bethlehem Steel chairman Don Trautlein, in his holiday message to employees, said he was "tempted to say that the best thing about 1982 is that the year is just about over."

Although the layoffs and plant closings of the past year were unpleasant, he said, they were necessary to make the company competitive and "we'll benefit from them for years to come."

"This may not be a very jolly message for the Christmas season," said Trautlein, "but it does contain one element that has always been powerful at this time of year — hope."

Clark sips milkshake, plans Christmas dinner

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Artificial heart recipient Barney Clark regained his appetite Thursday and ate his first regular food since the historic implant surgery three weeks ago.

University of Utah Medical Center spokesman John Dwan said Clark ate part of a milkshake, then told doctors he would like to try some potatoes and applesauce. The doctors said he could have them later in the day.

Dwan said this was the first "regular" food Clark has had. Up until Thursday he was being fed a special formula through a tube into his stomach. "He ate about one-inch of the milkshake," Dwan said. "Then he said he prefers chocolate and would under no circumstances eat strawberry."

The return of appetite came on time for the the hospital to plan a Christmas dinner for Clark and his family.

The 61-year-old retired Des Moines, Wash., dentist has been receiving most of his nourishment through a tube running through his nose into his stomach since he became the first man to receive a permanent artificial heart Dec. 2.

Following the surgery, Clark had no appetite. He also had trouble swallowing because of a respirator tube leading into his windpipe. Doctors inserted the food tube four days after surgery and began pumping a special diet into his stomach to help him regain strength.

They have been slowly weaning Clark from the respirator, removing it and allowing him to breathe on his own for periods of up to seven hours.

As Clark began his fourth week of life with the artificial heart, he was slowly regaining the strength sapped from his 6-foot-4 body by years of heart disease and three rounds of surgery.

In addition to the implant operation, surgeon William DeVries had to reopen his chest twice — once to repair small tears in his lungs and a second time 10 days ago to replace a malfunctioning left pumping chamber on the artificial heart.

Clark remained in serious condition in the past five days he has stood up under his own power for the first time since the operation. He took his first feeble steps and began speaking in an audible voice.

'Just the facts, ma'am'

Heart attack claims Webb

By JOAN GOULDING
United Press International

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Actor-producer Jack Webb, who portrayed the deadpan, no-nonsense Sgt. Joe Friday on the "Dragnet" television series, died Thursday of a heart attack at his home. He was 62.

"He discovered the LAPD," said a tearful police official in an uncharacteristic display of emotion. "We never existed until 'Dragnet.'"

Sheriff's officials said Webb's wife, Opal, called paramedics to the couple's West Hollywood home shortly after 2 a.m. MST, when she discovered her husband unconscious. Webb was pronounced dead at 2:23 a.m.

An autopsy determined Webb died of a heart attack caused by arteriosclerosis, coroner's spokesman Bill Gold said.

Webb's "Just the facts, ma'am" approach to television detective work made "Dragnet" a hit for 11 years. He is credited with introducing the realistic action series with creation of "Dragnet" in 1959 — a time when television was dominated by comedy and vaudeville.

Webb's other television productions such as "Adam-12," "The D.A.," "Emergency" and "O'Hara, United States Treasury" reflected an infatuation with law enforcement agencies which he attributed to his friendship with a Los Angeles policeman.

"He sparked my interest in police work and I found myself spending nights in police patrol cars and researching the crime lab files by day when time permitted. Through this, 'Dragnet' was born," he said.

Webb's best known movie was "The D.I.," in which he played a tough Marine Corps drill instructor. Like "Dragnet," the 1967 film was realistic and accurately depicted boot training at the Parris Island Recruit Depot in South Carolina.

"Dragnet" and "Adam-12" were based on meticulous study of the Los Angeles Police Department, and Chief Daryl Gates ordered that flags at police headquarters and substations be flown at half staff.

L.A. District Attorney George Gascon and other departments use episodes from "Adam-12" as training films.

"We used to get calls from other departments across the country saying they used to time roll call so they could watch 'Adam-12,' Cooke said. "It was so accurate they wanted to see how the LAPD handled situations."

Jack Webb dead at 62

Cooke said the department gave Badge 714, Webb's badge number on "Dragnet," to the actor with the inscription: "To Jack Webb, the best real cop from the best real cops."

Gates said the badge will now be retired and returned to the chief's office.

Holiday execution stayed

ATLANTA (UPI) — A federal judge reversed himself Thursday and granted an indefinite stay of execution to convicted murderer Freddie Davis, who had been scheduled to die in Georgia's electric chair the day before Christmas.

U.S. District Judge G. Ernest Tidwell, who earlier turned down an appeal for a stay, gave Davis' attorneys until Jan. 14 to file briefs supporting their appeal. He gave the state another 20 days to reply to the defense briefs.

Meriwether County Superior Court Judge Joe Jackson said he scheduled Davis to die between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. on Dec. 24.

One of Davis' attorneys, Patsy Morris, said she thought the execution date one day before Christmas was "absurd." Jackson said he didn't consider the date.

Tower collapse caused outage

By United Press International

Power failures which blacked out the homes of two million people, caused the evacuation of Disneyland and snarled commuter traffic, resulted from the collapse of towers that carried the west's main power lines, utility officials said Thursday.

The chain reaction came near to knocking out power throughout the western states late Wednesday, the officials said.

The power lines knocked down by hurricane-force winds carried two million volts and were part of the Pacific Inter tie, a complex system that automatically tried to save itself by throwing switches, darkening huge chunks of California and neighboring states.

Six big towers toppled near Tracy, Calif., when winds of up to 90 miles per hour blew in from a Pacific storm Wednesday night, swaying bridges, shaking highrises and leaving five people dead. Two other transmission towers went down in the Sierra Nevada near Reno.

This is how the Boise temple of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints will look when it is completed in 1984.

Sacred place

Boise Mormon temple will serve this area's church members

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — To a member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, a temple is a special place, indeed.

More than 20,000 Magic Valley church members will be served by a new temple, to be built in Boise.

Ground-breaking ceremonies for the temple were held last Saturday. The proposed 15,000-square-foot building will be constructed on five acres of land, between South Cole Road and Interstate 24.

Expected to be completed in 1984, the Boise temple will be the second built in Idaho. There is a larger temple in Idaho Falls.

A temple is not a public place of worship, says Milo Price, the Mormon spokesman for the Twin Falls area. Wards or congregations of the church use chapels or other buildings for regular weekly worship services.

Designation of buildings for special ceremonies is not new, state church officials say. The practice extends to Biblical times.

Besides temple operation, no other church administrative activities will be conducted in the new building, Price says.

Once dedicated, the Boise temple will be closed to all but "worthy" Mormons. Temple functions are "sacred, not secret," Price says.

Temples are reserved for sacred rites or ceremonies, such as marriage and baptism, according to church publications. Much of the temple work concerns family relationships.

For example, church members believe that through marriage ordinances, partners are bound together even after their death.

Other temple ordinances are conducted by church members on behalf of the dead.

"It is impossible for a member of the church to gain exaltation without taking care of their temple ordinances," Price says.

Before entering the temple, church members must present a "temple recommend," or paper filled out by a Mormon bishop and stake president, Price says. A stake is a regional Mormon area composed of many wards.

The Boise temple is "the first of a new generation of smaller temples being built around the world," according to a church official. It will be a third the size of the Idaho Falls building, Price says.

The Boise temple will serve some of the church members currently assigned to the Logan, Utah, and Idaho Falls temple districts, Price says.

Increased membership justified the building of the Boise temple, Price says. Temples of similar, smaller design are planned for Denver, Taiwan and Samoa.

The Boise facility will serve an area bounded by Lewiston on the north, Pendleton, Ore., on the west, Declo to the southeast and Carey to the northeast. Approximately 120,000 Mormons reside in the area.

The smaller "generic" temples will be built in greater numbers than in the past "in an effort to bring temple worship closer to more of the members of the church," church spokesman Edward Johnson said in a prepared statement.

There are 20 larger temples also serving the 5.1 million church members.

Church news

TWIN FALLS — Swen Loran Mikesell, the son of Dr. L. Vaun and Renee Mikesell of Twin Falls, will serve a mission for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in San Diego.

Swen, a graduate of Twin Falls High School, will speak at the sacrament meeting of the Twin Falls 11th Ward at 9 a.m. this Sunday.

TWIN FALLS — Norman Brent Martin, the son of Mrs. Shirlene Martin of Twin Falls, will serve a mission for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in Anaheim, Calif.

Norman, a graduate of Twin Falls High School, attended the College of Southern Idaho. He will speak at the sacrament meeting of the Twin Falls First Ward at 11:30 a.m. this Sunday.

Stocks score sharp advance

By FRANK W. SLEISER
United Press International

NEW YORK — The stock market wrapped up its best week in nearly two months by ringing up a sharp gain in moderate pre-Christmas trading Thursday with the help of some investors shopping for bargains.

"After a lull in the rally, investors also bought into steel and oil-service issues that had been left behind in the August-November surge."

There was little reaction to the Senate's passage of the nickel-a-gallon increase in the gasoline tax because Wall Street had anticipated the approval. The Dow Jones industrial average, a 4.76-point winner Wednesday, climbed 10.3 to 1,045.07 and finished the holiday-shortened week 33.57 points higher. That was the best weekly gain since it surged 60.06 the period ended Nov. 5.

Since the market will be closed today — Christmas eve — some traders replaced borrowed shares sold earlier, analysts said.

The Dow's 40.56-point gain since Monday was the first time it rose three straight days since it jumped 25.11.

73.77 Nov. 1-3, just before the elections.

The New York Stock Exchange index rose 0.52 to 80.33 and the price of an average share increased 21 cents. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index jumped 0.83 to 139.72. Advances topped declines 941-599 among the 1,590 issues traded.

Big-Board volume fell to 22,880,000 shares from the 33,470,000 traded Wednesday.

"It looks like we have a good year-end rally going," said Robert Stovall, Dean Wilfrid Reynolds vice president. "Next week should be better."

"This was exactly the kind of market that could have been predicted," said Trade Lattimer, Evans & Co. vice president. "It was quiet and slightly better."

Henry Kaufman, Industrial Solomon Brothers economist, sparked some buying when he predicted the Federal Reserve would cut its discount rate again soon because of the persistent recession.

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter totaled 73,183,990 shares, down from 97,037,340 traded Wednesday.

The American Stock Exchange index rose 1.43 to 331.39 and the price of a share added five cents.

Advances topped declines among the 1,025 issues traded. Composite volume totaled 7,279,205 shares compared with 7,431,650 traded Wednesday.

The National Association of Securities Dealers NASDAQ index of OTC stocks gained 1.29 to 232.22.

On the trading floor, General American Oil was the second most active NYSE-listed issue, up 1/4 to 46. The company offered to buy 8 million of its own shares at $50 apiece to thwart Mesa Petroleum's $40-a-share offer.

Belco Petroleum soared 5 1/2 to 24 1/2 on rumors General American would acquire the firm in another bid to blunt Mesa's offer.

AMAX was the most active issue, up 1/4 to 20 1/2 following a block of 1,850,000 shares at 19 1/2. Sony Corp. was third on the list, up 1/4 to 14 1/2.

El Paso Co., a 7-point winner the previous two sessions, eased 3/4 to 24 1/2. The company rejected Burlington Northern's offer to buy more than 50 percent of its stock at $24 a share.

On the Amer. Gulf Oil of Canada was the most active issue, up 1/2 to 10 1/2. Dome Petroleum followed, up 1/2 to 2 1/2.

Mid-December car sales up 36% above level of year ago

DETROIT (UPI) — Domestic

automakers received an early Christmas present Thursday in the mid-December car sales up 36.8 percent from the same period last year.

Each of the Big Four automakers recorded increases of more than 30 percent. Ford Motor Co.'s 61.6 percent topped the industry.

One analyst credited good weather and much of the country, plus low interest rates, rebates and the region's general pre-Christmas buying spirit for the big increase in sales.

The automakers sold 143,530 cars in the Dec. 11-20 period, up 36.8 percent from 104,900 autos last year. The sales rate of 17,941 cars per day was the best since 1979.

The annual selling rate — a figure used to project a period's sales over a year's time — was 6.4 million cars for the period, an increase from the annual rate of 5.7 million in the first 10 days.

For the month, sales by the five companies are up 23.9 percent. They have sold 286,225 cars so far in December compared to 230,978 last year.

The year's sales are down 8 percent to 5,594,835 from 6,078,254 last year.

Ford sales for the middle 10 days soared 61.6 percent to 33,848 from 20,942 last year.

Chrysler Corp. posted a 36 percent increase in mid-December sales. It sold 19,355 autos versus 14,309 last year. The company is offering low financing rates on 1983 models.

Chrysler's sales so far this month are up 25 percent. Its sales for the year are down 6.2 percent.

General Motors Corp., which has low financing on 1982 models, saw its sales go up 31.1 percent in mid-December to 84,993 from 64,718 last year.

GM's sales so far this month are up 17.3 percent and its year-to-date sales are down 7.9 percent.

American Motors Corp. sold an estimated 3,700 cars in the middle 10 days, up 58.5 percent from 2,335 last year. AMC sales are up due to the success of its Renault Alliance, built in Kenosha, Wis.

The automaker's sales for the month are up 41.1 percent. Its sales for 1982 are down 21.2 percent.

Volkswagen of America was the only company to report a sales decline. It sold 1,594 Rabbits in the middle 10 days, down 38.4 percent from 2,585 last year. VW sales for the month are down 45.7 percent and its sales for the year down 43.6 percent.

Money fund assets skid

money funds plunged $9.3 billion in the week ended Dec. 22, as investors apparently shifted to the new money market accounts at banks and savings and loan institutions.

The latest report follows a $4.7 billion outflow last week and leaves total assets $217.5 billion, the lowest level since Aug. 4, according to the Investment Company Institute, a Washington-based industry association.

Reginald Green, a vice president at the ICI, said the $13 billion two-week drop "in part reflects shifts out of money market funds to take advantage of higher introductory rates offered by deposit institutions on their new money market accounts," which he said "are not sustainable."

William E. Donoghue, publisher of Donoghue's Money Fund Report, Holliston, Mass., said "the smoothness with which this tremendous $13 billion outflow was handled was in fact proof of the viability of money market funds. It had no effect on any shareholder."

Categories of funds had a net outflow the week. General purpose funds fell $2.4 billion; broker-dealer funds were down $4.7 billion; institution-only funds gained $1.2 billion.

Twin Falls Detective Dennis Chambers investigates evidence at the scene of the robbery at First Federal Savings

Thief robs savings and loan

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The third robbery in Twin Falls this month occurred late Thursday afternoon at the First Federal Savings and Loan office.

Frank Childichimo, the FBI agent in Twin Falls, said a lone robber entered the savings and loan's main office, at 23 Second St. N., and handed a woman teller a note demanding money. Officers were unable to say if the man was armed.

"He didn't display a gun, but said he had one," Childichimo said. "He didn't wear a mask and made no attempt to hide his identity."

The robber escaped with an "undetermined amount of cash," according to the FBI agent.

The FBI is helping with the investigation because deposits at the savings and loan are federally insured.

The Twin Falls Police Department was alerted by an alarm at 4:40 p.m., Childichimo said, but by the time police arrived, in a matter of minutes, there was no sign of the suspect or a vehicle.

Childichimo said no one saw a vehicle that might have been involved in the robbery, and there was no indication the man had an accomplice.

Roadblocks were set up around Twin Falls, but without success.

The suspect is described as about 5-foot-7 to 5-foot-10 tall, 25 to 30 years old, with brown shaggy hair, coming to just over his ears. He was wearing a waist-length brown jacket.

The suspect wore no glasses, but several witnesses commented on his eyes.

"Probably the most evident part of the description is (that he had) puffy eyes," Childichimo said.

There were two customers in the building when the robbery occurred, officers said, and several employees.

Two out-of-state men were arrested Dec. 17 and charged with the two earlier robberies this month. The first occurred Dec. 7 at the Safeway store in the Lynwood Shopping Center, and last week, Waremart, at 1708 Kimberly Road, was visited by an armed robber.

Some valley farms hit with quarantines

State hopes to stop spread of disease affecting livestock

By The Times-News
and United Press International

BOISE — The Idaho Department of Agriculture announced Thursday the quarantine of about 25 southern Idaho livestock operations because of an outbreak of a viral disease affecting horses, cattle and swine.

State veterinarian Dr. Greg Nelson said the quarantines, 10 of which are in Twin Falls and Jerome counties, probably will remain in effect for about six weeks. The other quarantined operations are in the Boise area.

No livestock from a quarantined farm or ranch can be sold while the quarantine is in effect.

Nelson says state livestock specialists believe the quarantine will allow producers to curb an outbreak of vesicular stomatitis that erupted in eastern Idaho and the Magic Valley this fall and has moved westward in recent weeks.

The sale ban on quarantined farms and ranches could cause a severe economic hardship, Nelson says. But it is necessary to try to avert more widespread hardships.

"The disease has been diagnosed on approximately 160 different premises throughout southern Idaho," Nelson says. It already has brought serious economic losses to some livestock operators, particularly dairies, from animal weight loss, milk production losses and restrictions on livestock sales to other states.

Earlier this week, California banned the importing of Idaho dairy cattle until the disease is brought under control. Several California dairies have had outbreaks of the disease.

"Unfortunately, Idaho sent it to them," Nelson says.

The veterinarian says the outbreak appears to have subsided in eastern Idaho, but is prevalent throughout the Magic and Treasure valleys.

Nelson says the disease apparently was brought into the state by infected animals from Utah and Colorado. He had expected it to subside as cold weather killed the insects that spread the disease between animals, but that has not happened.

"It's just like Idaho that we can't expect any of these diseases to act like they do anywhere else," Nelson says. "The scientific literature on the disease says it is only spread by insects. We've proven that's wrong," he says.

Affected animals "profusely salivate," Nelson says. That saliva can spread the disease to other animals. One way that can happen is when healthy animals share a water trough with affected livestock.

University of Idaho researchers have isolated the virus in water troughs used by affected livestock, he says.

Since the disease first was discovered on Idaho farms and ranches in the fall, state agriculture officials have been placing verbal restrictions on the sale of those animals until the symptoms of the disease disappeared. But diseased animals apparently have been sold, Nelson says, increasing the spread of the disease.

Agriculture officials say the outbreak must be eradicated before the spring hatch of such disease-transmitting insects as mosquitoes, horse flies and gnats.

Symptoms of vesicular stomatitis include blisters in the mouth, profuse salivation, sore feet and blisters on the teats.

Nelson also says that people visiting quarantined sites should be careful not to bring the disease out with them and transmit it to a non-infected area, although that would require fairly close contact with the affected animals.

Newton trying to buy Elkhorn facility, expand operations

By The Times-News
and United Press International

SUN VALLEY — The 140-room Elkhorn Hotel, closed since early this summer, may be purchased by Las Vegas entertainer Wayne Newton, refurbished, and the surrounding land converted to time-share housing.

A representative of the Nevada performer, John Wells of The Brokerage at Warm Springs in Sun Valley, appeared before Sun Valley City Council this week to ask officials about their feelings on the concepts of time-sharing, in which resort participants typically buy a share of a condominium to use for a certain number of predetermined weeks per year.

According to Evan Robertson, the city attorney for Sun Valley, Newton's representatives "wanted to know the intentions of council," concerning restrictions that might be imposed by council in the future on time-share housing.

The Elkhorn Hotel, the adjacent miniature shopping mall, a golf course and a tract of undeveloped property currently is under the control of Manville Corp. of Denver.

Wayne Newton International Resorts, an investment arm of the Newton operation, which has been trying to set up time-share resorts across the country, is one of several firms inquiring about the Elkhorn property, a Manville spokesman said.

But Karl Bick, of Elkhorn Realty, which represents the facilities' owners, says the negotiations with Newton's representatives "are beyond the preliminary stage." The asking price is $5.5 million.

Bick says the negotiations involve the 105,000-square-foot hotel, the 18-hole golf course and 25,000 square feet of commercial space in the Village Mall, which has the potential for expansion to 70,000 square feet.

The entire complex sits on 11.5 acres that has enough undeveloped land to build 100 condominiums, Bick says.

According to Marc Reinemann, a broker with The Brokerage at Warm Springs, which is serving as Newton's agent in Sun Valley, if the negotiations are successful, Newton intends to refurbish the hotel and build additional time-share housing facilities.

"His intention is, in the long run, to create very high-quality time-share units," he says.

Reinemann says there is no specific target date for implementation of Newton's proposal, and he declined to discuss or describe the status of the negotiations.

While the nearby community of Ketchum has an ordinance restricting time-sharing, Sun Valley does not have such a law. In fact, Robertson says, there are few time-share housing units presently in the city.

Robertson says that in appearing before council, Newton's representatives wanted "what I would call, a comfort level."

"They wanted to show their intentions to council to find out if the concepts were so offensive that they could expect legislation that would preclude development," he says.

"They wanted to be sure that if they go ahead with this project, and get into time-sharing in a big way, that there won't be some restrictions imposed down the road" that would compromise the project.

Robertson says that council indicated that it was not opposed to the concept.

"I think council's mainly worried about marketing techniques and consumer protection," such as ensuring proper title arrangements and maintenance of facilities, Robertson says.

At Monday's meeting, council directed Robertson to begin developing appropriate ordinances for control of time-share housing.

"I've been looking at this for several months now, and it will take several months to properly research it. This is a relatively new concept across the country, and there isn't a lot of case law."

"I have a hunch you're going to see an ordinance (sometime next spring) that regulates, not prohibits, time-share housing," Robertson said Thursday.

The Elkhorn property being sought by Newton has been for sale since December 1981, when a foreclosure action returned control of the property to Manville Corp. and Dollar Mountain Corp., the original owners. Manville, which has 85 percent ownership, closed the inn in July, along with three restaurants and the Elkhorn Saloon, and there are no plans to reopen them.

The Elkhorn ski lift, two restaurants and several mall shops have continued to operate.

Currently, people seeking reservations at the inn have been booked into area condominiums.

Despite bad weather, crowds

Last-minute shoppers rush to stores to fill stockings

By STEVE LIPSON

TWIN FALLS — Shoppers battled bad weather and crowds Thursday, searching for gifts for hard-to-buy-for friends and relatives.

Or, they tried not to panic if they had barely begun their shopping at this late date.

One man said his wife was the last person on his gift list, as he sat sipping a cup of coffee in a shopping-center snack bar. But he had no reason to panic.

"She's buying her own gift," he said.

Kathy Sobotka of Kimberly looked at a calendar in a bookstore and said she needed one last present, for her grandfather. "He's hardest to buy for."

Laural Collins carried a bag full of presents and a roll of wrapping paper through downtown Twin Falls. She said a brother-in-law was the last person on her gift list, but she was starting to worry less about getting him a gift and more about whether she would see him and other family members gathering for Christmas in San Francisco. She was scheduled to fly there this morning — weather permitting.

Janet Riegen of Twin Falls still needed to find presents for her daughter, daughter-in-law, son and husband.

"I guess that's probably about the size of it," she said. Her philosophy for buying gifts was to find "special things they'd like to have, but probably wouldn't buy for themselves."

And she expressed a common-heard-often this Christmas season: "Things (costs) are higher; money's tighter. I think people are more selective. I know I've been."

One item that might be in high demand by shoppers today is car batteries, to replace ones that ran down Thursday. Because of gray skies and snow, most drivers turned their headlights on while driving to shopping places in the afternoon. Once there, in their hurry to get inside and escape the strong, cold winds, many left their lights on.

At the Blue Lakes Shopping Center and Mall, about one car in each row throughout the parking lot had its lights on.

Inside that mall, Santa Claus, who said he hadn't had time to do his own shopping, offered some gift suggestions to last-minute shoppers.

Cars have been popular requests from teenagers. They particularly like Corvettes and Lamborghinis.

"Santa didn't know what a Lamborghini was the first time someone asked for it. Santa was set straight," he said.

But that may not have been the most extravagant request.

"One lady asked Santa for a marriage license."

He also got several requests for boyfriends.

"Blond, blue-eyed models are popular this year," he said.

For those too young for Italian sports cars, husbands and boyfriends, Santa said the whippers he hears suggest that popular gifts will be Strawberry Shortcake and E.T. dolls, almost anything else having to do with E.T. and Atari games.

"I wish I'd invented Atari," he said.

Dog earns his keep, finds lost purse

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — John Hadam's dog has convinced his owner that he's worth keeping around for a while.

Hadam, who lives near Eden at the Anderson home, went out to feed his calves Sunday morning and discovered that his young pup had found a woman's purse and left it on the sidewalk in front of the house.

"It was muddy, soaking wet and pretty chewed up," Hadam says, "but it was intact, and most of the contents were all still inside."

Among the contents was an envelope containing almost $300.

Hadam and his wife said they were credit cards and other papers in the purse, all containing the name Anna Cheney. But he was unable to locate Cheney until Thursday.

"I was a long time to just give up and keep the purse and money," Hadam admits, "but I knew that wasn't right. It was somebody's money, and it didn't belong to us."

Hadam took one of the credit cards to the bank, but could get no information as to the address or telephone number of the owner. At the Sears store, he had more success. After presenting a credit card and explaining the situation, he was given Cheney's address.

Cheney and a friend were in a traffic accident in August, and their car went into a canal near Eden.

"It was quite a ways from Anderson's Camp," she says, "but if (the purse) may have washed downstream, we were lucky to get out alive, and I just never thought I would see the purse and money again."

Hadam was saving money for a trip, and it was all the more reason he wanted to find the owner. Cheney says that she gave Hadam a reward and told him to buy his dog a nice, big, tasty bone for Christmas.

Mrs. Hadam says that she and her husband have an older, quieter, well-behaved dog, but the younger one always is bringing things home. Usually, it's just a piece of junk, she says.

"I had been thinking of getting rid of that dog," Mr. Hadam says, "but I guess I'll keep him."

Drivers slide into holiday on icy, snowbound roads

TWIN FALLS — Area law-enforcement officers were swamped with calls Thursday of traffic accidents, slide-offs and abandoned vehicles along ice-covered highways.

Sgt. Mike Burgess, of the Idaho State Police office in Twin Falls, said one accident, about three miles east of the 1-84-Idaho 50 junction, involved six vehicles and actually two accidents by the time officers arrived, about 2:40 p.m.

He said a caravan of five vehicles was traveling east, and four of the units were involved in the wreck. Visibility at the time was about 10 percent, Burgess said.

Burgess said he counted about eight abandoned vehicles as he drove back to Twin Falls.

"It looks like the drivers just got out and either walked away or caught rides with other motorists."

Sheriff's deputies in Twin Falls County reported two accidents, involving injuries and countless minor accidents and vehicles in ditches.

One of the injury accidents was reported on U.S. 30, near the Murtaugh store. The other occurred just east of Kimberly, on U.S. 30, about 8:30 p.m. Other details were not available Thursday night.

Clergy calls for aid to disadvantaged, peace

By HARRIET GUTHRIE
Times-News writer

Twin Falls — Although Twin Falls-area clergymen are divided on the merits of a nuclear-arms freeze, they will ask their parishioners to think about peace and to help the disadvantaged this Christmas.

Nothing is as dear to the hearts of peace who fought evil non-violently, John Wood, the pastor of the Methodist churches in Kimberly and Murtaugh, says that he "supports the promotion of peace through the democratic process."

Wood's parish recently hosted a contingent of nuclear-disarmament activists, who plan to carry their campaign from the Pacific Coast to Bethlehem.

However, Wood points out that the United Methodist Church is not a pacifist organization, and that he, personally, served in the Army.

One of Wood's biggest thrills this holiday season was to see the community respond to the needs of the disadvantaged. His parish raised the funds and goods to distribute 31 Christmas baskets.

Unlike Woods, the Rev. Father Perry Dadds of St. Edward's Catholic Church in Twin Falls does not actively support the disarmament movement. Nuclear disarmament workers won't lead to peace. Peace is a gift of God, he says.

Dodds says that he will urge his parish to work at becoming more peaceful people themselves by working at home.

If each person cultivated a relationship with Christ to rid themselves of selfishness, greed, envy, impatience and unkindness, then they truly would be instruments of peace in the world, Dodds says.

Dodds also is reminding people that they should stress the spiritual side of Christmas.

A long-time friend of his set an example by sending "Daddy's note" with a note, saying that she was donating money to charity instead of buying him a gift.

St. Edward's assembled about 70 Christmas baskets for the needy.

Although the American Lutheran Church has gone on record as favoring a nuclear-arms freeze, the Rev. Lohar Pietz of Our Savior Lutheran Church in Twin Falls hasn't worked with his congregation on the peace theme much. Instead, he prefers to discuss consumerism and Christmas.

Many clergymen have said that the commercialization of the holidays detracts from their spiritual side. Pietz doesn't agree, however.

"The job of businessmen is to sell things, and the job of the church is to worship," Pietz says.

"We shouldn't chastise businessmen for doing what they're supposed to," he says.

Vandals test 'weak' Far West field

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Oregon State basketball Coach Ralph Miller says the field for this year's Far West Classic is not as strong as it has been in the past.

"I guess you could say it is kind of a normal Classic," said Miller, looking ahead to the tournament beginning Sunday at Memorial Coliseum. "The field does not look quite as strong as in the past. There aren't any big names or teams from the Big 10."

On paper, defending champion Idaho and Lamar appear to be the strongest teams entering the tourney. Both teams are 7-1, while three-time defending Pac-10 Conference champion Oregon State is 4-3.

Oregon (2-4), Montana State (3-4), Portland (4-5), Tennessee State (3-4) and Drake (3-3) round out the field.

Note that only Idaho, Lamar and OSU have records better than .500. Apparently, there will be only big-name teams of Classics past haunting this year's tournament — Michigan State and Magic Johnson, Arizona

State and Lionel Hollins, North Carolina and Phil Ford, Utah with Tom Chambers and Danny Vrain, Clemson and Larry Nance, Brigham Young and Danny Ainge, to name a few.

And while tournament officials admit that ticket sales are down, they are hoping Oregon State's recent River City shootout championship will attract fans as the tournament nears.

"We're holding our own," Hal Cowan, assistant director for sports information and promotions at OSU, said of ticket sales in Corvallis. "But they're down in Portland and Eugene and down from last year."

The tourney opens with Oregon against Montana State, followed by Portland vs. Idaho.

Monday's first-round games feature Oregon State against Tennessee State and Drake vs. Lamar.

On OSU-Idaho matchup in the finals would add spice to the Classic and to the rivalry between the two schools. The Beavers blasted Idaho 100-59 in the 1979 Classic and the Vandals routed OSU 71-49 in last year's semifinal round.

Oregon State took its revenge in the NCAA West Regionals last year by blowing past Idaho 60-42.

Idaho and Portland have faced one common opponent, St. Martin's. Portland lost to St. Martin's, 63-61, while Idaho emerged with a 65-44 triumph. Over the years, Idaho holds a 7-5 edge over Portland. The last time the teams met, in 1975, Portland triumphed 70-49.

Bowls Washington says Aloha to Maryland

HONOLULU (UPI) — When Washington meets Maryland in the Aloha Bowl Saturday, the question that will be answered is how does a balanced offense from the West stack up against a balanced offense from the East.

The No. 8-ranked Huskies, 9-2, who had to settle on a trip to Hawaii after being knocked out of a third straight Rose Bowl appearance, and 14th-ranked Maryland, 10-3, enter the inaugural Aloha Bowl with nearly identical figures on offense.

Statistically, the Terrapins, a surprising runner-up to Clemson in the Atlantic Coast Conference, hold a slight edge in per game categories: 32.1 points to 30.3, 267.7 yards rushing to 189.0, and 215.2 yards passing to 184.4.

And for good measure, Maryland, which lost its three games by a total of 11 points, finished the regular season ranked third nationally in rushing defense. Washington ranked 14th nationally in total defense.

The key offensive players for Maryland will be junior quarterback Boomer Eason, runner-up for ACC Player of the Year honors, and running back Willie Joyner.

Eason completed 175 of 314 passes for 2,392 yards and 18 touchdowns. To complement the aerial game, Joyner became only the third rusher in Maryland history to gain over 1,000 yards in one campaign. He averaged 5.9 yards per carry and scored seven touchdowns.

Under first-year Coach Bobby Ross, the Terrapins set three ACC records and 41 school marks, 34 by the offensive unit.

Dan James' Huskies will counter with quarterback Tim Cowan and Steve Pelluer, who combined for 175 completions in 316 attempts for 2,029 yards and 18 TDs. On the ground, sophomore tailback Jacques Robinson, who was named the Rose Bowl's Player of the Game as a freshman, will handle the bulk of the work. During the regular campaign, he gained 926 yards and scored seven touchdowns.

Both teams also boast kickers who rank among the top in the nation. Washington has Chuck Nelson, who boot an NCAA record 25 of 26 field goals this past season, and Maryland will bank on Jess Atkinson, who made 16 of 22 three-pointers.

The Aloha Bowl meeting will be the first football game ever between the Huskies and Terps.

Kick-off will be at 5 p.m. MST and will be carried on cable television by MetroMedia.

Tar Heels, Texas seek Sun's shine

EL PASO, Texas (UPI) — For North Carolina quarterback Scott Stankavage, a Sun Bowl victory over Texas on Christmas Day "would take a little bit of the tarnish" off the Tar Heels' mediocre 7-4 season.

Despite the 7-4 record, North Carolina finished with the second-toughest defense in the nation, allowing only 28.5 yards per game. But offensively, the Tar Heels often suffered from mental mistakes and penalties.

Coach Dick Crum said such mental errors will be crucial against Texas. "Offensively, we cannot have some of the silly penalties we've had and we cannot turn the ball over," he said.

"We had so many things go wrong with a team that was supposed to be very good, but we kept patching up, patching up."

Texas, 9-2, won its last six games of the season while North Carolina dropped three of its last five games. That is why Stankavage said the Sun Bowl was "a great opportunity for our team to take a little bit of the tarnish off this season with all the frustration and all the disappointments."

Calling Texas on to test how he has ever faced in a bowl game, Crum said the Longhorns' confidence level is up after their 33-7 victory over Arkansas. North Carolina has faced Texas five times, with Texas leading the series 3-2. Saturday's game will be a rematch of the 1980 Bluebonnet Bowl, which the Tar Heels won 16-7.

"The difference this time as opposed to 1980 is that Texas is coming off those six wins and really beat Arkansas impressively in its last game," Crum said.

Texas Coach Fred Akers observed that North Carolina was a good football team to have lost four games. And his worries about the Tar Heel defense were magnified by the loss earlier in the week of Texas quarterback Robert Brewer.

Brewer, who completed 91 of 193 passes for 1,415 yards, broke four school season passing records, and led Texas to a 14-12 upset of Alabama in last year's Cotton Bowl game, broke his thumb in practice before the team left for El Paso.

Akers replaced Brewer with sophomore quarterback Todd Dodge, but the remainder of Texas' offensive punch is intact.

BILL RODGERS
A noncompetitive race

Festive Bostonians run & jingle

BOSTON (UPI) — Jingle bells are not standard gear for four-time Boston Marathon winner Bill Rodgers, but he and some 2,000 other runners donned bells Thursday to dash through the Sixth Annual Jingle Bell Run.

"It puts everyone in the Christmas spirit," Rodgers said of the 4.5-mile night run from Boston College to downtown Boston. "It's not a race. It's totally noncompetitive."

Runners tied bells to their sneakers and decked themselves in costumes ranging from human poinsettias to scraggly Santas calculated to draw the attention of residents and passersby.

"You say 'Merry Christmas' to everyone and they look at you kind of strange, then they break into a smile and say, 'Merry Christmas,'" running promoter Tommy Leonard said.

A 10-piece dance band, professional chorale group, 4,000 cups of beer, 1,200 containers of yogurt, and a tiered 9-foot birthday cake were set up for the sweat-soaked runners in the glittery Boston-Sheraton Hotel ballroom.

"It's very bizarre," Rodgers said of the unlikely setting for the post-race bash, planned in part to celebrate his 31st birthday.

World-class runners Greg Meyer and Patti Catalano also donned bells for the annual event, which started in 1977 when Rodgers and about 25 friends decided to celebrate his birthday by jogging around the city to look at the lights.

"We used to run around Boston Common and back to my store," said Rodgers, who operates a running shop and mail-order business out of a small store in Boston's Cleveland Circle.

Finishing times were eschewed to stress the relaxed nature of the event. The $10,400 proceeds from the $8 entry fee were earmarked for one of Rodgers' pet charities, the Massachusetts Special Olympics.

"It's the true meaning of Christmas," Leonard said. "Giving."

Grant's violations tarnish memories of CSI success

College of Southern Idaho basketball fans probably won't ever forget Boyd Grant. The man that now coaches Fresno State was the coach that guided the Golden Eagles to the national championship in 1976 and a 93-6 record over three glorious seasons during the mid-1970s.

The fond memories CSI fans have for Grant received a bit of tarnish Wednesday when the Pacific Coast Athletic Association placed Fresno State on probation for one year and voted to hand Grant a "public reprimand."

The fact that a former CSI coach had gotten into trouble with the National College Athletic Association and PCAA recruiting rules doesn't diminish what he accomplished at CSI, but it does make one wonder what went wrong.

Based on United Press International's account of the PCAA decision, Grant's mistakes, and those of another coach on the staff, were minor infractions of the conference and NCAA rules. Fresno State didn't slip a player a couple of thousand dollars to play for the Bulldogs nor did a booster give a new sports car to a player.

The violations included:

- Allowing two enrolled student-athletes and a prospective student-athlete to attend a day of boating, water skiing and picnicking with a coach, some FSU boosters and their families.

- Coach or coaches arranging for some boosters to take a trip to observe a high school and a junior college athlete. The trip was partially paid for out of university recruiting funds.

- Members of the coaching staff entertained two high school counselors and an assistant high school coach on three occasions.

- A member of the coaching staff bought small gifts for the sister on an enrolled student-athlete and an assistant high school coach.

What happened is that Grant and another coach crossed the fine line between what the NCAA says a coach can and can't do for his athletes and those coaches he associates with in the recruitment of potential players.

CSI basketball fans may be wondering just how fine a line the NCAA draws.

What's wrong with a coach and/or boosters entertaining some athletes to a day of water skiing or what's wrong with a coach inviting some of his players over to his house for Christmas dinner when they may be hundreds of miles from home and family?

"Basically, there was a finding by the PCAA that the out-of-town was an extra benefit that was available only to the players and not to every student at Fresno State," Tom Yeager, assistant director of the NCAA's legislative services division, told The Times-News Thursday. "Before a student is enrolled at a school, a coach can not provide him anything of value other than the one expenses-paid trip to visit the campus. Once the student is enrolled, a coach or boosters can not provide that student with anything that isn't available to the student body."

Yeager said a Christmas dinner situation or a water skiing activity would be tough to rule on, although they are technically a rule violation. He said the intent of the rule is to prevent a booster "from taking the entire team to his condo in San Diego for the Christmas break."

As for the second violation, a school is not allowed to use its funds for the benefit of private citizens. The third and fourth violations fall under a coach or his staff "being nice" to others so that they might recommend that an athlete attend that university.

The NCAA's rules are tough. They cover everything from millions of dollars in TV revenues to the eligibility of high school students to participate in all-star games. The NCAA has 18 full-time staffers in its rules enforcement department and another 25 part-time investigators scattered across the country that it can call on to test into possible or alleged violations. The NCAA, as a whole, has in excess of 1,000 people (both paid and volunteer) to help in its myriad of functions.

On the other hand, the National Junior College Athletic Association, whose rules CSI must follow, has three full-time staffers in its Hutchinson, Kan., office. Three.

The rules Grant had to follow while at CSI were fairly simple.

"The only big recruiting rule that we have is an ethical thing," Wayne Uhrn, one of the NJCAA's three staffers, said Thursday. "A coach should ask the school administration, be it a high school or college, for permission to talk to a prospective athlete."

Briefly, the NJCAA's other rules (outside of academic requirements) prevent a student-athlete from receiving more than one "full-ride" scholarship. A school can also give an athlete one ticket to school and home again during the school year.

Uhrn said the NJCAA doesn't have any specific rules regarding gifts, but "does not condone any boosters providing cash or gifts other than the allowable scholarship and one direct round-trip ticket."

Uhrn, compared to the NJCAA, is the NCAA so strict?

Money. Because of TV revenues, NCAA members can reap hundreds of thousands and even millions of dollars by having a successful team. The incentive to bend and break the rules is much greater than on the junior college level.

Such incentive might've been the reason Fresno State crossed the NCAA's fine line.

A violation of the rules shouldn't be overlooked, but fortunately for those of us who wish Grant succeeding, Fresno State more than steps to correct its problems. The conference so acknowledged while handing out its justice.

Maryland edges UCLA in double OT

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (UPI) — Ben Coleman scored 27 points and Adrian Branch 26 Thursday night and the Maryland Terrapins hit 11 free throws in the second overtime to score a 90-79 upset victory over No. 3 UCLA at Cole Field House.

With the score tied 67-67 in the second overtime Maryland scored the next seven points, and Mark Fothergill's stuff shot with 2:03 left gave Maryland a 74-67 lead.

A four-foot jump shot by UCLA's Kenny Fields cut the Bruins' lead to 79-77, but Maryland's Herman Veal hit a foul shot with 11 seconds remaining to give the Terrapins an 80-77 lead.

Maryland scored 11 of its 15 points in the second overtime from the foul line.

Fields paced UCLA with 23 points while Rod Foster added 22.

With the score tied 65-65 in the first overtime Branch missed a 15-foot jump shot with six seconds remaining and Pete Holbert fouled Fields with two seconds left. Fields missed the front end of a one-and-one situation and the Terrapins grabbed the rebound to force a second overtime.

Maryland led 57-50 with 3:40 left in regulation, but a 9-2 UCLA streak, including two foul shots by Foster, tied the game 61-61 with 1:19 left.

Maryland turned the ball over on its ensuing possession and with 34 seconds left, the Bruins went for the last shot. Ralph Jackson missed a 4-foot jump shot with three seconds left and the Terrapins Jeff Adkins narrowly missed a half-court shot at the buzzer as the game went into overtime.

Fullerton 58, Idaho St. 45

POCATELLO (UPI) — Leon Wood shot 19 points to lead California State-Fullerton to a 58-45 victory

College basketball

over Idaho State Thursday night.

Fullerton took an early 14-6 lead, but the Bengals battled back for a 26-26 halftime tie.

The lead see-sawed back and forth in the second half until Fullerton guard Ricky Mixon scored to make it 35-34. Idaho State never regained the lead and trailed by six points for most of the second half until Fullerton finished strong with Wood making 9-of-10 from the free-throw line.

Neither team shot well from the field, with Fullerton hitting 40 percent and Idaho State 35 percent.

Don Holston and Mike Williams scored 10 points each to lead the Bengals.

Utah St. 67, Utah 66

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Chris McMullin hit a 35-foot prayer shot at the buzzer to give Utah State a 67-66 victory over Utah Thursday night.

McMullin's game-winning shot was set up when George Furgis missed the second of two free throws with five seconds left to play.

With 2:35 left in the game, USU Aggie Michael McCullough hit a 15-foot jump shot to tie the score 65 each. He then ran the clock down to five seconds when Furgis drew a foul from Lance Washington.

Utah State had four players in double figures, led by Greg Grant with 18 points. Washington added 16, Ron Ence 14 and McMullin 10.

The Aggies had the hot hands from the floor, shooting nearly 62 percent. They hit 65 percent of their free throws.

Memphis St. 81, So. Mississippi 60

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Keith Lee scored 30 points and Bobby Parks added 10 points and 10 rebounds Thursday night to lead 4th-ranked Memphis State to an easy 81-60 win over Southern Mississippi.

Lee, who had hit only 12-of-43 shots from the field over his last three games, scored 17 first-half points to pace the Tigers, now 8-0, to a 38-24 halftime lead.

Southern Mississippi closed to within eight points and trailed by only 65-50 with 7:30 remaining in the game. Then Lee, who had not scored more than 20 since the season opener against West Texas, hit a three-point play and added two jumpers to give MSU a 19-point lead with less than four minutes left.

Washington 55, Missouri 48

SEATTLE (UPI) — Paul Fortier's jumper with 2:32 left gave Washington the lead for good Thursday night and the Huskies led a 55-48 victory over previously unbeaten Missouri at the foul line.

No. 6 Missouri, which trailed most of the game, led 43-38 with 9:10 left but poor shooting hurt the Tigers down the stretch. Missouri shot just 3-for-21 from the field in the second half.

After Fortier put the Huskies ahead 46-45, the Tigers were forced to foul repeatedly in the last two minutes as Washington sank 9-of-10 free throws to ice the victory.

Washington led 32-29 at halftime but the Huskies didn't score a field goal for the first eight minutes of the second half and got into foul trouble.

Sports briefs

Broncos sign JC linebacker

BOISE (UPI) — Boise State's football coaching staff has announced the signing of a junior-college linebacker who will be counted on to help the Broncos remain one of the Big Sky Conference's best defensive teams in 1983.

Chris Thiesen, a 6-foot-3, 220-pound defender from Walla Walla Community College, Walla Walla, Wash., has signed a national letter of intent to play at the Boise school next season, Coach Jim Criner said.

Criner said the heavily recruited Thiesen chose Boise State over schools such as Missouri, Utah, Utah State, Brigham Young, Indiana, Hawaii and Idaho.

Criner said Thiesen, who will play at outside linebacker for the Broncos, has been clocked at 10.8 seconds in the 100-meter dash. He has tied a school record with 25 quarterback sacks at Walla Walla last season and led his team with 120 tackles.

"Chris is a big, strong and has exceptional speed," said Boise State defensive coordinator Lyle Seltenich. "He's a great pass rusher and has a great knack in pass coverage as well."

Dorsett suffers chest pains

DALLAS (UPI) — Dallas Cowboys running back Tony Dorsett drove to a hospital early Thursday after experiencing chest pains, but doctors found no heart problems and said the pains were probably the result of Dorsett being hit in the back during Dallas' win over Houston on Dec. 13.

When Dorsett was in the ninth grade, his older brother died of a heart attack at the age of 27.

Dorsett said that when he awoke early Thursday with pains in his chest, he wanted no time in getting in his car and heading for a hospital in the Dallas suburb of Plano.

He was given a series of tests and after they all proved negative he was released from the hospital.

Sooner back suspended

NORMAN, Okla. (UPI) — Former running back George "Buster" Rhymes has been suspended from the University of Oklahoma for one semester for allegedly cheating on a final examination.

Officials say Rhymes could return to school after the suspension, but would not be eligible to play football next fall.

Rhymes, who set a Sooner freshman rushing record of 659 yards in 1980, sat out the 1982 season as his punishment for stealing a stereo from a teammate last spring.

Ex-Cub announcer honored

CHICAGO (UPI) — Jack Brickhouse, a veteran of 5,000 baseball broadcasts, Thursday earned a spot in the Baseball Hall of Fame as the 1983 recipient of the Ford C. Frick Award.

The award is presented annually to a broadcaster by the Hall of Fame. Brickhouse will receive the award next August in Cooperstown, N.Y.

Brickhouse said the impact of being a Hall of Famer will "sink in two or three days from now."

"In Cooperstown, there's a definite feeling you get as you walk those hallowed halls," Brickhouse said. "I would have to be less than human if I said this was anything less than No. 1 in my life."

"Nothing in God's world can top this."

Fryman stays with Expos

MONTREAL (UPI) — Relief pitcher Woodie Fryman has decided to come home to the Montreal Expos, after a pay dispute that led to a brief filing as a free agent, team officials said Thursday.

The 42-year-old left-hander left the National League team Nov. 4 after the Expos offered him a pay raise far short of his demands for an annual salary of between $400,000 and $500,000.

But on Thursday a team spokesman said Fryman "has agreed to terms on a one-year contract covering the 1983 season." He did not say just how much the pitcher would get.

Fryman was 9-4 with a 3.75 earned run average in 60 appearances with the third-place Expos in the 1982 season. He was the top-ranked left-hander among National League relievers, posting 12 saves.

Pros didn't match enthusiasm of local dancers

'Nutcracker' show a disappointment

By WILLETTA WARBERG
Times-News correspondent

Since its first performance 90 years ago, Tchaikovsky's ballet, "The Nutcracker," has been plagued with abuse. Last Wednesday's performances at C.S.I.'s Fine Arts Auditorium were no exceptions.

In fact, it graded from one to 10, the performances by the nationally roving ballet company, American Festival Ballet, probably would rate a six.

If not for the Magic Valley dance students' participation in the production, and their enrapt audience of parents, it might have been a depressing affair.

The local dancers included Heather Call, Valerie Evans, Rosanna Boyle, Shelby Watson, Stacy Gulich, Amy Greene, Pam Nielsen, Lisa Saavedra, Marne Watson, Tabetia Carlson, Amy Boyd, Nevada Freeman, Lacy Towley, Monica Unrau, Courtney Barlow, Andrea Condie, Natasha Coats, Kelli Esten, Nancy Emery, Brady Martin, Analise Taylor, Annie Taylor and Mandy Werbeck.

Admittedly, the story is absent of logic and the choreography requires too many dancers, immense scenery and stage, plus orchestra. And through the years since the ballet's inception, many re-stagings have been made: One never knows, when seeing a new company perform the work, which of the many choreographic approaches the group will favor.

Despite the flaws, difficulties and failures, "The Nutcracker" has survived mainly because it is impossible to keep down the genius of Tchaikovsky's musical scoring of the ballet.

Elizabeth Rowe-Wistrich, choreographer for this production, has obviously used Nureyev's version for the Royal Ballet in 1963.

Wistrich did what the many renowned choreographers have done over the years and has altered the dancing to fit the size of her group. The Grand Pas de Deux of the second act is about all that remains close to the original choreography of Petipa in 1892. Wistrich's attempts to provide fantasy for floppy-heeled dancers was satisfactory. That's all.

Maybe in the Northwest in general and Twin Falls in particular, we shouldn't expect to see a group such as the Royal Ballet, the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, or the New York City Ballet with choreography by Nureyev or Balanchine. And, maybe we shouldn't expect to see staging by Sergeev or Georgiadis.

Markova, Talichief, Fonteyn, Helpmann and Baryshnikov may never be seen here in the Valley.

But, when we pay money to see a professional traveling company which has the Brooklyn Academy of Arts on their itinerary in 1983, and considers "The Nutcracker" as a standard in their repertoire for not just one year, but for the last nine years, we should be able to drive through winter snow storms to a concert production and expect to see a production that is more than academic.

Were the principle dancers tired? Or, were they bored? Why the difference between the local dance students' vitality and the traveling ensemble's disinterested attitude?

The acoustical engineer for the group should have worked with CSI and the sound system for the recorded music score so that the dancers could hear the music they danced to and hold more to the rhythm.

Credit is due two young stars. Anne Westcott, the pretty Clara, heroine of the ballet, was lovely and quite graceful. Andrea Condie, the local dance student, made her sweet Bon Bon bye bye and appears, at her young years, to be a potential stage performer.

Elizabeth Diaz was plausible as the Snow Queen. Kirsten Ferber was graceful as the Sugar Plum Fairy but the Prince, Steven Wistrich, appeared calculated and somewhat resigned to his role.

Kelly Lee Helstad was delightful in her Marzipan Dance, which highlighted the ballet. She seems to be the best prepared dancer of the group.

The Grand Pas de Deux, danced by Kirsten Ferger and Steven Wistrich, was passed off unemotionally by dancers and audiences. This is the ballet's most finely etched number and is often performed alone on varied programs of dance. It fell short in the American Festival Ballet's performances.

The American Festival Ballet claims its purpose. It opens the doors to classic dance in small communities where there may just happen to be a few left who've not seen ballet on TV yet. Their performances in Magic Valley last Wednesday barely left the door ajar.

Plenty of books offer photo tips

Q. I would some guidelines on how to compose pictures. Can you suggest a good book or can you furnish me with some information that will give my pictures more impact?

A. There are a number of good books on this subject written by professional photographers. They are idea books or a good approach to photography. Reading some of these books will be a good start.

Composition is concerned with a multitude of elements: The shape, form and design that gives the photograph the impact and character it needs to separate it from the ordinary. It is not easy to learn. And photographers seldom think alike or have the same ideas on how to compose a picture.

Why? Composition is the human element of photography. It tells how the photographer related to the subject. Professionals have specific styles in their work and, in fact, are easily identifiable by their unique compositional style.

Q. I've always been confused by the meaning of ASA. Can you explain to me why these letters are on the film boxes?

Photos

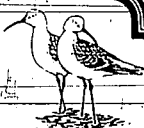

A. I'm sure that many people are in the same situation as you are, because I've received numerous questions about it.

Years ago there were confusing film speed ratings, such as Weston, Schneider, Din and several others from foreign countries, all indicating film speeds. There was no standard accepted rating for film.

The American Standard Association (ASA), from an organization called the American National Standards Institute, examined all U.S. and imported film. It controls how long a roll of film should be, the amount of components, and it requires manufacturers to meet its standards within one-third of an F-stop.

Film speed is measured off a sensitometric curve at the same point of the characteristic curve of the film, thus controlling all the relative differences by one institute — one central authority. Otherwise, there would be much confusion if we had each manufacturer indicate its own film speed.

Few surprises as CBS tops Nielsens

Friday, December 24, 1982 Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho C-3

By ED BARK
Dallas Morning News

DALLAS — With a little help from "E.T. and Friends," CBS cruised to another win in the weekly Nielsen ratings.

For the week ending Dec. 19, CBS had an 18.9 rating and 30 percent share of the viewing audience. With a 16.9 rating, 26 share, ABC took its third straight lead, beating NBC pulled up last again with a 14.7 rating, 23 share.

CBS had 11 of the top 20 shows, while NBC's logo was affixed to 14 of the bottom 20. NBC's "60 Minutes," a laudable dramatic show, finished dead last in the ratings opposite a pair of fluffies, ABC's latest Barbara Walters special (No. 14) and the second hour of CBS's "11 Was a Mail-Order Bride" (No. 9).

Two NBC specials showed surprising muscle. The network television premiere of "Oh God, Book II" (No. 5) was a celestial being opposite timeslot competition from ABC's Sunday night football game (No. 55) and CBS's usually powerful trio of "The Jeffersons" (No. 15), "One Day At A Time" (No. 11) and "Trapper, John, M.D." (No. 23).

NBC's "Chipmunk Christmas" (No.

6) made wood chips of ABC's "That's Incredible" (No. 31) and CBS's "Private Benjamin" (No. 50).

On the old-reliable front, Perry Como's latest Christmas special (No. 25) easily turned back time slot competition from NBC's "The Devil Connection" (No. 72) and the second half of Larry Hagman's CBS movie "Deadly Encounter" (No. 49).

After 12 weeks of the regular season, CBS has an average 18.5 rating, 29 share for its prime time programming. Way behind are ABC (16.326) and NBC (15.525).

Here are the ratings for the week ending Dec. 19:

1. "Dallas" (CBS); 2. "60 Minutes" (CBS); 3. "MASH" (CBS); 4. "E.T. and Friends" (CBS); 5. "Oh God, Book II" (NBC); 6. "Chipmunk Christmas" (NBC); 7. "The Love Boat" (ABC); 8. "Magnum, P.I." (CBS); 9. "11 Was a Mail-Order Bride" (CBS); 10. "Falcon Crest" (CBS); 11. "One Day At A Time" (CBS); 12. "Dynasty" (ABC); 13. "Newhart" (CBS); 14. "Barbara Walters Special" (ABC); 15. Popular CBS series to double its Dukes

By DAVID BIANCULLI
Knight-Ridder Newspapers

Hazzard County will be overflowing with Dukes before the end of the season. John Schneider and Tom Wopat, the original "Dukes of Hazzard," who quit their popular CBS series over a dispute about profits from "Dukes"-related merchandising, will join Christopher Mayer and Byron Cherry (their replacements) in 1983.

According to CBS and Warner Bros., the show's production company, the parties involved have dropped all lawsuits and announced their intention to rejoin forces. Mayer and Cherry will remain in the cast.

"Bryon and Christopher have done an excellent job for us," Warner Bros. president Alan Watanabe said Thursday in a quickly prepared statement. "We intend to keep them in the cast and take full advantage of the fact that they have created their own fan following."

Their presence on the show can only be a plus.

Their presence without Wopat and Schneider, however, didn't add up to much. Weekly Nielsen ratings for "The Dukes of Hazzard" dropped significantly after the original Duke brothers left the show.

What's what

Q. Why is it so hard to tell how old a man is when he's wearing a beard?
A. What shows your age mostly is the lower third of your face, it's said. From the nose down past the chin. Or, chins. That's why evidently.

It is not out of the ordinary for the sperm whale to carry 500 gallons of the world's purest oil in its forehead. Early hunters mistakenly took that oil to be the animal's sperm, hence the whale's name.

The salute to the quarterdeck that a sailor delivers when stepping aboard ship started out as religious sign to the crucifix posted there.

LOVE AND WAR

"Don't I know you from somewhere?" That's still the opening line most often delivered by men who wish to introduce themselves to women. Or so report the researchers who study matters romantic. Our Love and War man finds their report surprising. He'd thought the old line had long ago worn out. Had hoped, anyway.

Q. What's the most expensive college to attend now?
A. Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Costs about $12,000 a year, at this writing.

Q. I know that state with the most Federal land is Alaska, but which state has the least?
A. Connecticut.

TYPEWRITER

Nine out of 10 female business executives know how to handle a typewriter, and, in fact, got their start using same.

At Cambridge University in England generations ago, "Nob" was the registrar's abbreviation for "nobility," and "S" was the abbreviation for the Latin "sine," meaning "without." After the names of high-born students, the registrar wrote, "Nob." After the names of low-born students, he wrote, "S.Nob." That eventually gave us our word "snob." Please note, the first snobs were commoners. How the meaning got turned around I don't know.

If you can't remember the names of the Great Lakes, think of "Homes" for Huron, Ontario, Michigan, Erie and Superior.

Daily Horoscope

'GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day and evening when you will have many opportunities to prove that you follow the doctrines of the Prince of Peace or whatever your school of thought and philosophy of life happens to be.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Handle important routines early in the day for best results. Be sure to take the treatments you need to improve your health.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Handle an outside affair of importance instead of wasting time on a private matter and advance your line of endeavor.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Avoid friends during the daytime and go after your practical affairs wisely. Know better what your goals are.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Study your surroundings and make plans for improvement. Don't give others an opportunity for criticism.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) A friend could have some ideas that are radical, so listen but do not commit yourself. Show generosity of spirit.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Complete your work early and be sure to wish co-workers a happy holiday. Get in the spirit of things.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Accept invitations that come up unexpectedly since they could be just right for you. Be happy, contented.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Try to please family members in every way today and make sure you do so quietly and in the right spirit.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Take time for any last-minute shopping you have to do. Analyze your life and plan how to improve it while having a good time.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Take care you are not too extravagant today. Discuss with close ties how to become more successful in the future.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY
 he or she should be given little duties to perform early in life and taught to complete them in order to form the good work habit. Direct education along lines of research for best results. Don't neglect spiritual training.

Almanac

By United Press International

Today is Friday, Dec. 24, the 358th day of 1982 with seven to follow. It's Christmas Eve.

The moon is moving from its first quarter toward its full phase. The morning stars are Jupiter and Saturn.

The evening stars are Mercury, Venus and Mars. Those born on this date are under the sign of Capricorn.

American frontiersman Kit Carson was born Dec. 24, 1809. On this date in history:

In 1814, a peace treaty between the United States and Great Britain was signed, ending the War of 1812.

In 1862, six men of them veterans of the Confederate Army organized a secret fraternal society in Pulaski, Tenn.; known as the Ku Klux Klan.

In 1942, Adm. Jean Louis Darlan, the French administrator of North Africa, was assassinated as a sympathizer of the French Vichy regime.

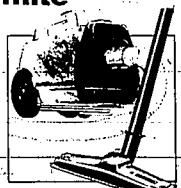

In 1949, the Christmas song "Rudolph, the Red-Nosed Reindeer," first swept the United States.

Brief film reviews

From Times-News wire services

AIRPLANE II. Robert Hayes and Julie Hagerty star in this sequel, in which the action takes place on a space shuttle that should have never been approved for takeoff. And this tired, plotless parody of the original "Airplane" should never have been approved for production. Rated PG. 2 stars.

BEST FRIENDS. Burt Reynolds and Goldie Hawn star in this delightful romantic comedy as best friends who test their relationship by getting married. The pair give wonderful performances in a film which contains surprising moments of truth, moments in which we recognize the characters are actual human beings. Rated PG. 3 1/2 stars.

Movies

AN OFFICER AND A GENTLEMAN. Richard Gere, who plays a hardluck guy determined to become a naval aviation officer, is put through a grueling training program by an uncompromising drill instructor, played superbly by Lou Gossett, Jr. And during it all, we watch Gere's both painful and joyful growth, which includes an absolutely absorbing and realistic love affair with one of the townies, played by Debra Winger. Rated R. 4 stars.

TOOTSIE. Dustin Hoffman stars as Michael Dorsey, a bright, aggressive, out-of-work actor who auditions for a soap opera in drag and wins the role. One of the most endearing things about this film is that the actress is able to carry most of her own scenes as herself. This movie gets you coming and going—it's not afraid to mix up absurdity with seriousness, social comment with farce and a little heartfelt tenderness right in there with the laughs. Rated PG. 4 stars.

THE TOY. A demanding Southern tycoon (Jackie Gleason) buys his son, a chip off the old block, an unusual toy in this comedy. The toy demanded by the son, on leave from military school, is a meaningful relationship with a would-be journalist (Richard Pryor). Rated PG. 1 star.

THE VERDICT. Paul Newman gives a powerful performance as Frank Galvin, a Boston lawyer who has had his problems over the years—a lost job, a messy divorce, a disbarment hearing—all traceable in one way or another to his alcoholism. When a lawyer pal (Jack Warden) drums up an open-and-shut malpractice suit for him, Galvin sees bringing the case to court as a way to regain his self-respect. Rated PG. 4 stars.

Woman's direction leads her to altar

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: This may not seem like much of a problem, but at the moment it's monumental. I am engaged to marry a wonderful young man I met four months ago. We have everything in common. Interests, ethnic backgrounds, religion, etc., and more important, we really love each other.

We met when I came to this town and was looking for a building. I was told it was two blocks south of Third Street. My sense of direction is not very reliable, so I approached a nice-looking young man who was walking in my direction, and I politely asked him which way was south.

He smiled pleasantly, said that he was walking south too, and offered to walk me to my destination. In less than 10 minutes we realized we liked each other enough to strike up an acquaintance. And you know the rest.

The problem: When people ask me how I met my fiance, what do I say? — BLUSHING IN FLUSHING

DEAR BLUSHING: Tell them you picked him up on a street corner. They'll never believe you.

DEAR ABBY: I would like to appeal to all your teen-ager readers: I am a 19-year-old housewife. I have been married for 10 months and have an 11-month-old baby.

I got pregnant when I was 18 and had to get married before I was really ready for all the responsibilities that went with it.

I love my husband and baby, but it's not easy. The responsibilities are enormous. I never appreciated my parents more than I do now. I never realized how good I had it before I became a wife and mother.

Esquire offers best worst-ever awards

By LAURA BERMAN
Knight-Ridder Newspapers

Esquire's annual Dubious Achievement Awards have become one of the most imitated features in magazines. Regional and city magazines have been blatantly stealing the awards idea and its like-sized item format ever since the awards became entrenched as a genuine institution sometime in the '70s.

With its first issue of 1983, Esquire recaps the past 22 years of dubious achievements. These are, allegedly, the "best" dubious achievement awards of all time and include some of the more tasteless and raunchy items and the endless mockery of Richard Nixon. The exercise is also a history lesson of sorts, reminding us how quickly once-famous names, customs or news events recede into obscurity.

In 1966, for example, Esquire picked on Life's "most fearless editorial stand of the year" for its spirited defense of Bill Moyers during the Watergate scandal. The best year for dubious achievement awards was undoubtedly 1972, when Julie Nixon Eisenhower said she would die for the Thieu regime, and was rewarded with the headline, "Promises, Promises."

In 1968, Esquire snubbed "Oh, Shut Up!" to Village Voice writer Jill Johnston for these comments: "Telling it like it is means telling it like it was and how it is now that it isn't what it was to be in the now people." That may not have made sense in 1968, but it made more sense then than it does now, don't you think?

Eye-catchers: People (Jan. 3) The 25 most intriguing people of the year, including aliens E.T. and Yuri Andropov. Winning "most intriguing couple of the year" honors are Bill Agee and Mary Cunningham, who pose at bedside (but not under the covers) for People's photographer. For two people who don't like publicity, this uncommon couple volunteers some awfully personal information: They like ducks because they're monogamous, and they plan to have either two or four children. Explains Mary, People's "Madonna of the Mergers": "Three is too common."

Glamour (Jan.) reports in with a scientific survey on women's attitudes, which shows American women to be a tough-minded lot: Eight out of 10 favor the death penalty for some crimes. A large majority (70 percent) support abortion and the ERA (63 percent), and 52 percent

Advice

So, listen to me, all you teen-agers. Don't try to grow up too fast. Listen to your parents. They have only your best interests at heart.

— IMPATIENT, FOOLISH AND DEAR IMPATIENT: Thanks for a very important message.

DEAR ABBY: Have you any words of wisdom to help promote reading in young people?

— LIBRARIAN, WINTER PARK, CO.

DEAR LIBRARIAN: If I could give young people one piece of advice, it would be READ, READ, READ! In reading, you will open up new worlds, real and imagined. Read for information, read for pleasure. Our libraries are filled with knowledge and joy, and it's all there — free for the taking. The person who does not read is no better off than the person who CANNOT read.

DEAR ABBY: I loved your book, "The Best of Dear Abby." It is coming out in paperback?

— CHARLESTINE IN BEVERLY HILLS, CALIF.

DEAR CHARLESTINE: It's out now, published by Pocket Books ($2.95) — and is selling like hotcakes!

Magazines

want prayer in the schools. They are also a happy bunch — more than 90 percent say they are satisfied or very satisfied with their lives. (We think some are either lying or fooling themselves). Also, Bo Derek tells what she likes most about her body — her calves. Victoria Principal likes her back. Why do these women tell us such things?
